When Did We See You Lord?

Cynthia Strouse (above) went shopping after church with Sue Ferguson and Sharon Fishkin. They picked up whatever was needed to complete the 25 Thanksgiving baskets Zelda Earle and one of our junior helpers are ready to serve lunch.

Sue Ferguson tells Dave Murray what needs to be done at St Marks.

We have always had a history of reaching out to help our neighbors. This fall we lived the command to love thy neighbor. It began with serving at the monthly dinners at St. Marks Lutheran Church and continued with collecting, shopping and delivering 25 Thanksgiving baskets for TVCCA families. It is ongoing through our food pantry and in our ministry to and with our children.

Thank you for donating and giving of your time to serve our Lord.

Heather, Bethany, Katie and Chelsey are about to make up the Thanksgiving baskets.

New Nursery List Is Available

We want to thank those who have volunteered to take a turn in the church nursery this summer. Here is the nursery list for this month:

December 3 - Laura
Kreger & Brian Goldin
December 10 - Sandy
Stone & Sharon Fishkin
December 17 - Michelle
Alfred & Rachelle Weimer
December 24 - Hired Help

We are always looking for volunteers to take a turn in the nursery rotation. You do not have to have small children to volunteer. Contact the church office and we will accommodate your desire to help.

10 Reasons To Be Thankful At Church

10 - Each week last month we had a different speaker share their thoughts on stewardship, faith and giving in worship. Curt Brockway, Fred Green, Cliff Vanase and Nancy Allen all came back to the fact that it is God's love that moves them to give something back to the ministry.

9- We collected enough food and money to supply 25 thanksgiving baskets for people in need last month. We received lots of "thank yous" for not only each turkey dinner we provided, but for a few days of groceries as well.

8- We had a good meeting with the folks from Central Baptist as we continued to explore what a joint ministry would look like. Under the leadership of Linda Lea Snyder, we shared some memories and tried to identify what each church was known for. It was another step forward in the process of discerning God's will for our future.

7- The Annual Choir Festival was a lot of fun and proved that something good can get better each year. Our choir was wonderful and the combined anthem was especially moving.

6- Rosie Main got together a group of ladies that worked on our costumes for the Annual Pageant later this month. Not only did they accomplish a lot, they also had fun doing it.

5- Eleven kids and adults went to the Word of Life Super Bowl in Providence, RI. They spent all night watching hockey, bowling and roller skating. They also enjoyed some pizza and a message by a youth minister.

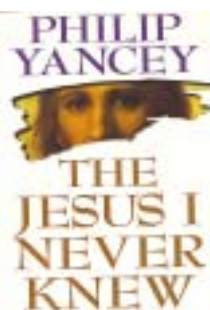

4- In Sunday School the kids have been creating a banner. On Thanksgiving Sunday they shared it with the rest of us as they carried it forward in worship singing "Rise and Shine."

3- At our quarterly meeting we heard how God was blessing our ministry in many different ways. We also voted to worship with Central Baptist again this winter.

2- Amy Hollis has jumped right into our ministry in several different ways. It was announced that she will go deeper next month when she preaches on December 3.

1- God loves you and you hear it from our pulpit every week.

Bill Rossoll has had a rough time in his latest go around with the medicine. Think of him in your prayers... Harry and dot calkins' son, Harry Jr., had surgery last month and he is recuperating... Judy Dupont had a bad reaction to her medication but she is back on the right trek now.. We lift up Frank Roderick as he continues his treatment for his cancer... Ken Taylor will be going to New York to apply for an experimental treatment that has recieved good reviews. Think of him... Think of Melinda Brick as she contemplates another ankle operation... Al Damien continues to show signs of imporvement. We pray they keep coming... Fred Coleman was in Backus for a few days but he is out and back to work... We think of Elsie West as she was fighting kidney stones and spent time in the hospital last month... We think of Bruce Thornton as he goes in for hip surgery...

Our hearts go out to Nancy Schuster on the death of her father. We think of his grand-daughters, Laura Kreger and Sandy Mehlinger, as well...

We think of our expectant parents, Kate (Strouse) and Chris Canada and Dave and Miranda Poore in the coming months...

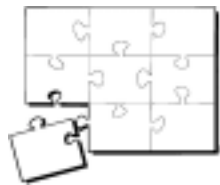

We continue to lift up Edith Robinson, Helen Moore, Janet Furbush, Myrtle Henry, Doris Regets, Steve and Jean Roscoe, Myra Christensen and Michelle Lord in prayer.

Also lift up the discussions between First and Central Baptist Church as we consider God's will in our futures.

These girls didn't look too bad considering they stayed up all night at the Word of Life Super Bowl on November 10th. I wonder where the adults are? Could they be snoozing in the corner?

If you would like to take an active role in our ministry in 2007, please grab a pledge card on the back table at church and check off the boxes on one side that ask you for your gifts and skills, and on the other side make a good faith estimate of what you will be able to contribute financially each week next year. 2007 offering envelopes will be available in the next few weeks.

News about our members and friends...

Cami Ferguson and the NFA girl's soccer team did pretty well this year. They won their conference title and advnaced in the state tournament. We are so proud of them. I heard Jeff Ferguson did pretty well with the NFA Boy's Freshman team too! Have you been to James and Carolyn Brown new family Restaurant called "The Little Carnegie Deli" at 200 North Main Street. Ask for something with James' famous barbecue sauce... Bethany Brown will graduate this December with her degree in education from Plymouth State College. I believe Terry Dunn, Becky Lord and Emily Dutra are all scheduled to graduate from college next May... Courtney Brown and Adam Barber are planning a July 2007 wedding. We rejoice with them... Did you know that Amy (Brockway) and Matt Meyer have moved to the Boston area and purchased their first home. Their new address is: 84 Medford Street #3, Malden, MA 02148... We caught Pat Bubenicek in church last week. She was down in Florida recently but came back to see her grand-daughter in a fashion show in Mystic... Bob Duntz is in the manager training program for McDonald's. He has been working out of the McDonald's in Gales Ferry recently. Say "hi" if you see him... Fred and Gwyn Green went back to their home church in Wakefield RI for a baptism service for their nephew and were pressed into service and sang a duet... Rosie Main has a houseguest this fall. Her grandson, Jeffrey is visiting her. He is "little Carol's" oldest son...

A new feature in our Sunday School program is the class craft time. Rachele Weimer, Cassie Kane and Amy hollis have been working with the kids on a project. The last project was a colorful banner that we used in a worship service in November.

Our Mission In The World

An Opportunity To Make A Difference In The World

Mercedes Barnes was recently in Norwich where she met with a small group from Central and First Baptist. She is our ABC missionary in Baja, Mexico. We heard about the exciting work being done among the churches there and what is needed to help the communities there. We are planning a mission trip to the region in mid to late February. All interested members of our church and Central Baptist Church will join together for this wonderful opportunity.

These are a few common questions that you may ask:

1. How many people do you need to have a viable mission trip?

We have had a variety of numbers. I would say a common number is about 12-14 but we have worked with smaller and larger groups.

2. Is there a minimum age?

NO! All ages welcome. You will need to have a passport for every person hoping to come back into the United States.

3. What type of work would we be doing?

The work depends on what mission church you would be assigned to. Sometimes it is painting, sometimes it depends on the giftedness of the people that volunteer. We have had electricians, librarians and people with many different skill sets.

4. What are the expenses that we would have?

Your airfare of course. We also charge $ 17.50 per person per day which covers meals and lodging. Housing is at the student dorms with bunk beds and window air conditioners. We also ask for the group to bring a $1000.00 offering to cover the cost of building materials,, etc... Other expenses are related to shopping, eating out/ treats. If you like, there is a town south of here with a beach and plenty of shopping opportunities. We like to see groups schedule in a "play day" toward the end of their stay with us.

5. What about lodging and meals?

With that money we provide food and your group prepares breakfast. We have a cook that will come in and prepare lunch which is the main meal of the day and the evening is usually leftovers or snacks. Some groups go out in the evening to nearby taco places which are very inexpensive and are on your dime.

6. Would we have to bring any work items?

That would depend on the project. If we need specific items that is usually covered by the offering. But we do suggest that you bring your own work gloves, personal items, etc...

If you are interested speak to Bob Booth, Sandy Stone or Barbara Trocki of Central Baptist.

SURPRISED BY GOD IN MISSION:

SAMPLING CURRENT STORIES FROM THE FIELD

What happens when you pray for and give to support the ministry of Wendy Bernhard in the Democratic Republic of Congo? Amazing things! Young people at risk of contracting HIV seek health...and find Jesus!!

Wendy is a theologian who trains those whom God calls to lead the churches of Congo. But she is also passionately concerned to work with young people to stem the tide of HIV/AIDS that is ravaging the country. She helped to conduct a two-day youth rally in Kimpese this summer. Of the more than 100 youth who participated, some 40% made personal commitments to follow Jesus as the Lord and Savior of their lives.

What happens when you pray for and give to the support of the ministry of Adalia and Ray Schellinger in Mexico? Amazing things! Mexican and American Baptists team up to provide refuge in the name of Jesus to abused women who thought they had nowhere to hide from their abusers.

Adalia and Ray are working with the Mexican Baptists at the northern end of Baja California as God brings to full flower the dream he gave Baptist women in Tijuana, to respond to the needs of their many abused neighbors. October saw the dedication of the new shelter at Deborah's House, the fruit of an incredible amount of work by both Mexican Baptists and the American Baptist short term mission teams that have, as Ray puts it, "anointed the ground with their sweat."

What happens when you pray for and support the ministry of Barb and Dwight Bolick in Chile? Amazing things! In this case, a group of people on the margins of society get "on the radar screen" of Chile's new president!

The Bolicks serve with the Mapuche, a marginalized indigenous people group in southern Chile (that's really southern!!). As the Mapuche become more fully convinced of Jesus' love for them, and of the value they have as God's dear children, they recover the sense of dignity that has so often been trampled in the past. One of the key projects Barb has been pursuing with Mapuche women is to help them appreciate, produce and market to the world the weavings that are part of their cultural heritage. Recently, the Chilean town of Panguipulli raised the profile of Mapuche weavers by giving Chile's President, Michelle Bachelet, the gift of a weaving from the group with which Barb works.

Our Ministry To The Family

The Cat Rug

I wanted to hide it in the garage. But my husband was latch-hooked to it.

By Beth Ortstadt

My husband and I have different tastes in home decorating. I think there should be a master plan, a style, a theme that harmonizes the individual pieces. His philosophy: "If I like two things, then they go together."

My greatest surprise when we bought our first house was that he'd even have an opinion about home decor. I thought I'd decorate and he'd say, "That's fine, Honey." I should have known better. I should have realized that the art of decorating, as with everything in marriage, involves the art of compromise.

My wake up call was the "cat rug." I'm not talking about a rug where the cat sleeps. This monstrosity is a large latch-hook rug that prominently features a Siamese cat. It showed up in the hallway of our first home shortly after we moved in. The cat rug came to be a sort of shibboleth between his people and my people. You either "got" the cat rug or you didn't. I and my people didn't.

In my defense, my only prior encounter with latch hook was when my sister was given a latch-hook project as a form of occupational therapy during an extended stay in a psychiatric hospital.

My husband's family, on the other hand, is a bastion of latch-hook tradition. His beloved grandmother held a black belt in latch hook. She single-handedly created enough latch-hook pieces for every member in the extended family. Her influence moved other family members to dabble in latch hook too. In fact, my husband's first latch-hook rug graces the floor of our daughter's room. And now my sweet, but naive daughter is sitting at her dad's feet with her very own latch hook.

Also in my defense, growing up I never had a cat long enough to grow attached. The few animals we had in our home either ran away or threw themselves in front of moving cars (except for the turtles, who threw themselves under Dad's lawn mower).

My husband's family had a Siamese cat for nearly 18 years. I sense the cat's importance in the fact that she is the subject of more home movie footage than some of the children.

Not long after we settled into our new home, some of my college friends came for a visit. The first item on the agenda was a tour of the house. "What's with the cat rug?" one of them asked, with all the tact of a really close friend. I tried to explain my in-laws' latch-hooking tradition and their beloved Siamese cat. "But why do you have to have it in your hall?" she asked.

Obviously she wasn't married yet.

After the walk down the aisle, I was faced with a crucial choice: to accept lovingly all aspects of my spouse's personality in the "front room" of my life, or to shove parts of him into the "garage." His hand-me-downs, his hobbies, and his habits are all part of the deal.

For me, love means having a cat rug on the floor, even if I don't see how it fits the overall decorating scheme. Love means an antique Spanish sword on the wall, a dartboard in the family room, and a bookcase dedicated to baseball card storage. For my husband, love means living with a flowered bedspread, enough scrapbooks to document the history of the world, and an abundance of fake ivy scattered around the house.

Not everything in our house matches. Not everything is neat and tidy. None of our rooms would make the pages of a magazine. But they are filled with the give and take of more than a decade of shared living, with memories we've built together.

They're also a daily reminder that marriage is not about me. The things in my home that are more my husband's taste than mine are small, tangible reminders of the surrender that love requires. And it's often the small things that are hardest to surrender. I can easily promise my faithfulness until death do us part, but I'm not so eager to agree on the thermostat setting and the direction the toilet paper should be rolled. I'll love him and cherish him, but I'd rather not give him input on paint colors.

It's no surprise that Christ compares our relationship with him to a marriage. Learning to let go of the little things out of love for my husband is good practice in letting go of every little piece of my life to God. I may wince at some of the things God chooses for us, or pout about giving up something, but in the end, love means surrender.

I'll admit I'm still tempted to shove a few things into the garage. Instead, I flex those surrender muscles and remember to be grateful for all the parts of me my husband lovingly keeps in his front room.

A Powerful Witness

Rich Storytelling

The Nativity Story screenwriter Mike Rich seeks to make Hollywood a kinder, gentler place for the family.

How does a career radio host working in Portland, Ore., become a successful screenwriter? Mike Rich attributes his meteoric rise in Hollywood to divine providence—that and a God-given knack for writing family-friendly films that connect with the masses.

Rich's first screenplay, Finding Forrester (2000), starred legendary actor Sean Connery, grossing more than $50 million at the box office. The Rookie (2002), the story of pitcher Jimmy Morris, is Rich's highest-grossing film to date at $75 million.

Rich went on to write screenplays for Radio (2003) and Miracle (2004), both grossing $52 and $64 million respectively. He also lent his writing skills to Eight Below (2006) and next year's historical thriller Manhunt starring Harrison Ford.

But two years ago, Rich began writing his latest screenplay, The Nativity Story, a project much closer to his heart and more evenly aligned with his strong Christian faith. His desire to write the script based on the traditional Christmas story was bolstered by the success of The Passion of the Christ.

"That movie, quite frankly, knocked down some walls and made it possible for me to present this story to the industry," Rich, 47, explains.

The Nativity Story is set for release nationwide in December. Rich says he has long been intrigued by the story of Joseph and Mary's journey to Bethlehem, where Jesus was born. The story is often told as one single event and rarely addresses the untold parts of their 110-mile trek."

Rich knew he would have to fill in a few blanks along the way.

"The only way to tell the story was to try and take that foundation in Matthew and Luke and expand upon it, while at the same time being very faithful to the spirit, tone and content of those Gospels," he says.

Though not all of Rich's projects have been blatantly faith-based, he is blessed to have been part of several movies that give families an alternative to the violence and sexual content, which have overtaken a majority of today's film industry. As the father of three children, Rich's best advice to dads looking to protect their kids from the entertainment "minefield" is to "lead by example."

"It's not easy," he admits. "It takes homework. You have to be committed to doing that. The easy way out is letting your child go look at a computer for two hours. You have to commit yourself to taking protective measures and introducing [your child] to content that will last a lifetime."

Rich's influence in Hollywood is certainly a blessing to those worried about the entertainment industry's quickening downward spiral. Despite the alarming trend, parents can thank this unassuming screenwriter for bringing a few more family-friendly films to the big screen.

"I view it as a privilege to be placed in this position where I think we can put story content out the families can not only enjoy, but perhaps it sparks a dialogue or conversation that can bring them closer together as families," Rich says. "Not many individuals get an opportunity to do that, and the fact that I've been placed in that position is a responsibility that I take very, very seriously."

Wit, Wisdom and Wackiness

A MUST TO READ!!!!

The embers glowed softly, and in their dim light,
I gazed round the room and I cherished the sight.
My wife was asleep, her head on my chest,
My daughter beside me, angelic in rest.

Outside the snow fell, a blanket of white,
Transforming the yard to a winter delight.
The sparkling lights in the tree I believe,
Completed the magic that was Christmas Eve.

My eyelids were heavy, my breathing was deep,
Secure and surrounded by love I would sleep.
In perfect contentment, or so it would seem,
So I slumbered, perhaps I started to dream.

The sound wasn't loud, and it wasn't too near,
But I opened my eyes when it tickled my ear.
Perhaps just a cough, I didn't quite know,
Then the sure sound of footsteps outside in the snow.

My soul gave a tremble, I struggled to hear,
And I crept to the door just to see who was near.
Standing out in the cold and the dark of the night,
A lone figure stood, his face weary and tight.

A soldier, I puzzled, some twenty years old,
Perhaps a Marine, huddled here in the cold.
Alone in the dark, he looked up and smiled,
Standing watch over me, and my wife and my child.

"What are you doing?" I asked without fear,
"Come in this moment, it's freezing out here!
Put down your pack, brush the snow from your sleeve,
You should be at home on a cold Christmas Eve!"

For barely a moment I saw his eyes shift,
Away from the cold and the snow blown in drifts.
To the window that danced with a warm fire's light
Then he sighed and he said "Its really all right, I'm out here by choice,
I'm here every night."

"It's my duty to stand at the front of the line,
That separates you from the darkest of times.
No one had to ask or beg or implore me,
I'm proud to stand here like my fathers before me.
My Gramps died at 'Pearl' on a day in December,"
Then he sighed, "That's a Christmas 'Gram' always remembers."

"My dad stood his watch in the jungles of 'Nam',
And now it is my turn and so, here
I am.
I've not seen my own son in more than a while,
But my wife sends me pictures,
he's sure got her smile."

Then he bent and he carefully pulled from his bag,
The red, white, and blue... an American flag.
"I can live through the cold and the
being alone,
Away from my family, my house
and my home."

"I can stand at my post through the rain and the sleet,
I can sleep in a foxhole with little to eat.
I can carry the weight of killing another,
Or lay down my life with my sister and brother."

"Who stand at the front against any and all,
To ensure for all time that this flag
will not fall."
"So go back inside," he said,
"harbor no fright,

Your family is waiting and I'll be all right."
"But isn't there something I can do, at the least,
Give you money," I asked, "or prepare you a feast?"
"It seems all too little for all that you've done,
For being away from your wife
and your son."

Then his eye welled a tear that held no regret,
"Just tell us you love us, and
never forget.
To fight for our rights back at home while we're gone,
To stand your own watch, no matter how long."

"For when we come home, either
standing or dead,
To know you remember we fought and we bled.
Is payment enough, and with that we will trust,
That we mattered to you as you
mattered to us."

Four Teams Will represent FBC Hoops As We Enter Our Eleventh Season in League

For a while it looked like James Brown was going to have more than he could handle. The boys and girls kept talking about playing basketball and we were scrambling for coaches. Then Jim Volpe and Jack Greenwood stepped up and offered to coach one team. Julio Sanchez, who coached last season, brought along a friend to coach another team. It turned out that this was a good thing. James has just opened a new restaurant and it has taken more time than he thought. So Fred Green came to the rescue and offered to help oversee the program and to give James a hand in coaching.

The season opens in the next or so and we will have three Junior Varsity teams for boys in grade 4- 6 and one Varsity team for grades 7 - 8.

The Pastor is working with Coach Green to offer devotions and to pray with the kids. They will also be recruiting other members of the congregation to share their testimonies and to pray with them before games. The schedules will be available at church pretty soon if you would like to come and cheer the kids on.
